Inflation News: In the last year, overall, prices have generally become more stable which is a really good thing. And to that end all the burners we make have remained steady in price. But element wire suppliers have increased by two to three percent over the past year and we are hoping this will be the worst of it. The big exception is Ransome burners imposed a large increase last year which will effect their prices for now. Many of our kits use the Ransome burners because they are a great product which has left us no choice but to pass the increase along. The only redeeming factor is this is an investment in your shop equipment which will last a lifetime and they work great for high pressure gasses.

Most of our customers are DIY equipment connoisseurs and to that end we provide great burners and elements to heat their equipment. To the best of our ability we will try to keep a lid on this inflation stuff.
